Detailed Contents
Revised Spring 2008

Preface

Part I Orientation and Overview

Chapter 1 Getting Started: Preparing Your First Speech
Deciding on Preliminary Matters
Selecting Your Topic
Determining Your General and Specific Purposes
Analyzing Your Audience
Preparing Your Speech Text
Preparing Your Speech’s Body
Deciding What Your Main Points Will Be
Deciding What Developmental Materials You Will Use
Preparing Your Conclusion
Preparing Your Delivery
Selecting Your Manner of Delivery
Rehearsing Your Speech
Practice Aloud
Practice While Standing
Practice Without Stopping
Practice in a Classroom-sized Room
Practice from Your Outline
Talk through Your Speech—Don’t Memorize It
Handling Speech Anxiety
What Speech Anxiety Is
Controlling Speech Anxiety
Physical Action Before You Speak
Physical Action While You Speak
On Cookbooks and Masterpieces

Chapter 2 Public Speaking as a Communication Process
Public Speaking and the Symbolic Construction Process
Speech and the Symbolic Projection Process
What Would an Effective Speech Be Like?
Your Speech as a “Living Creature”
Create a Sense of Internal Preparation
Create a Sense of Forward Motion
Create a Sense of Climax
Create a Sense of Closure

Chapter 3 The Process of Effective Listening
Listening is the Reciprocal of Speaking

Table of Contents, page 2

Listening is Different from Hearing
Preparing for the Listening Act
Long-term Preparation
Read Widely
Build Your Vocabulary
Break Any Long-term Bad Listening Habits
Short-term Preparation
Sit in an Efficient Listening Posture
Clear Your Mind of Competing Impulses
Select an Appropriate Purpose for Listening
Suspense Any Pre-speech Judgments about the Speaker
Developing the Listening Act
Internalize the Introduction
Determine the Speaker’s Purpose for Speaking
Determine the Structure of Main Points
Discover the Supporting Details
Reach Out to Catch Poorly Projected Ideas
Take Notes Selectively
Culminating the Listening Act
Summarize the Speaker’s Message
Re-engage Your Critical Faculties
Concluding the Listening Act
Was the speech clearly focused in presenting its ideas?
Did the main points really support the major theme or purpose?
Was the supporting material appropriate to the points being made?
Was the speech adequately adapted to the actual audience?
Did the manner of delivery contribute to the overall effectiveness of the speech?
Was the speaker right about the position being taken?
What action, if any, should be taken in light of the speech?

Part II Principles of General and Informative Speaking

Chapter 4 Topic Selection and the Impulse to Speak
Topic Selection
Selecting Your Topic
Evaluating and Refining Your Topic
Do I know enough about the topic to make a speech about it?
Do I want to tell others about the topic?
Can I limit the topic adequately?
Can I interest my audience in the topic?
Formulating Your General and Specific Purposes
Types of General Purpose
Formulating Your Specific Purpose Statement
Evaluating and Refining Your Specific Purpose

Chapter 5 Understanding Audiences: Involvements and Expectations
The Nature of Audience Analysis
Foundations of Audience Analysis
Chapter 6 Developmental Material for Speeches

Definitions
Intensity versus Extension
Methods of Definition
Classification and Differentiation
Example
Comparison and Contrast
Synonym and Antonym
Etymological Origins
Negation

Examples
Narratives
First Person Narrative
Third Person Narrative
Fictional Narrative
Humorous Narrative
Historical Narrative

Statistics
Uses for Statistics
To Report Absolute Magnitudes
To Make Quantitative Comparisons
To Chart Trends
To Suggest Relationships
To Report Averages
Principles for Using Statistics
Use Statistics Fairly.
Reveal Who Generated Your Statistics.
Explain Which Type of Average You Are Using.

Chapter 7 Organizing Informative Speeches

The Systems of a Speech
Six Patterns for Organizing the Bodies of Informative Speeches
Chronological Order
Preparatory Events
Developmental Events
Culminating Events
Concluding Events
Spatial Order
Topical Order
Cause-to-Effect Order
Simple-to-Complex Order
Comparison and Contrast Order
Selecting a Pattern of Organization
The Possibilities within the Subject Itself
The Demands of Your Purpose
The Demands of the Audience
Refining Your Speech’s Sense of Organization
Use Parallel Grammatical Form
Use Active Verbs
Use Word Repetition
Use Key Word Labels
Use Mnemonic Devices
Acronyms
Alliteration
Alphabetical Succession

Chapter 8 Introductions, Conclusions, and Transitions

Introductions
Functions of Introductions
Capture and Direct Your Audience’s Attention
Reveal Your Topic, Purpose, or Theme
Relate Your Topic to the Audience’s Interests
Chapter 9 Projecting Your Ideas Visually

The Functions of Visual Aids
- Visual Aids Enhance Audience Attention
- Visual Aids Reinforce the Spoken Word
- Visual Aids Clarify Complex Ideas
  - Clarity of Numerical Relationships
  - Chart Trends
  - Dramatize Numerical Comparisons
  - Reveal What Something Looks Like
  - Reveal the Relationship of Parts to Some Whole
  - Make Process Relationships Clear.

Types of Visual Aids
- Non-electrically Enhanced Visual Aids
  - The Speaker
    - Use Descriptive Gestures
    - Model Appropriate Postures and Movements
  - Wear Appropriate Clothing
  - Actual Objects
  - Models of Actual Objects
  - Representations of Actual Objects
  - Representations of Conceptual Data
  - Flow Charts
  - Maps
  - Graphs
  - Diagrams

- Electrically Enhanced Visual Aids
  - Films and Videos
  - Slides
  - Overhead Transparencies
  - Opaque Projections
  - Audio Equipment
  - Caveats and Cautions!

Using Visual Aids Effectively
- Prepare your visual aids before you deliver your speech.
- Make the visual aid large enough to be seen without strain.
- Make the visual aid simple enough to be understood at a glance.
- Use color and contrast selectively.
- Talk about your visual aid, but talk to your audience.
- Avoid blocking the audience's view of the visual aid.
- Reveal your aids only while you are using them.
- Create motion in your visual aids.

Chapter 10 Preparing Diagnostic and Presentation Outlines

Principles of Outline Preparation
- Use Spatial Relations to Project Ideational Relations
- Use a Consistent Pattern of Symbols
- Use Complete Sentences
- Revise Freely
Chapter 11 Delivery: Bringing Your Speech to Life through Voice and Movement

The Functions of Delivery
- To Empower the Ideas You Wish to Communicate
- To Indicate the Structure of Your Speech
- To Emphasize Key Points
- To Establish Contact with Your Audience
- To Enhance and Guide Audience Attention
- To Express How You Feel about Your Topic

The Elements of Delivery
- Projecting Your Ideas with Your Voice
  - Speech Production
    - Respiration
    - Phonation
    - Resonation
    - Articulation
  - Vocal Elements of Delivery
    - Volume
    - Rate
    - Pause
    - Duration
    - Pitch
    - Stress
    - Climax

Chapter 12 Language and Symbolic Construction: Bringing Your Speech to Life through Words and Phrases

Language and the Symbolic Formulation of Reality
- Naming
- Asserting
- Discouraging

Qualities of Effective Oral Language
- Precision
  - Denotative Precision
  - Malapropisms
  - Vague Reference
  - Ambiguous Reference
- Connotative Precision
- Clarity
- Appropriateness
  - Appropriateness to Your Own Personality
  - Appropriateness to Your Audience
  - Appropriateness to Your to the Occasion
- Vividness
- Animating Your Ideas through Artful Language
  - Repetition-Based Techniques
    - Repetition of Sounds
    - Alliteration
    - Rhyme
    - Assonance
  - Repetition of Words
  - Repetition of Phrases
  - Repetition of Grammatical Patterns
    - Parallel Structure
    - Antithesis
    - Correlative Conjunctions
  - Climaxing Triads
- Image-Based Techniques
  - Comparative Images
Part III Principles of Persuasive Speaking

Chapter 13 Introduction to Persuasive Speaking

What is Persuasive Speaking?
Persuasive Purposes
Replacing an Old Belief
Changing a Belief’s Intensity
Establishing a New Belief
Changing a Behavior

Topics and Propositions for Persuasive Speeches
Factual Topics and Propositions
Evaluative Topics and Propositions
Policy Topics and Propositions
Definitional Topics and Propositions

Issues and the Four Types of Propositions
Issues in Factual Propositions
Issues in Value Claims
Issues in Policy Claims
Issues in Definition Claims

Chapter 14 Constructing Persuasive Arguments: Patterns of Organization, Reasoning, and Evidence

Five Floorplans for Organizing Persuasive Speeches
Topical Reasons
Problem-Solution
Comparative Advantages
Criteria-Satisfaction
Elimination of Alternatives

Units of Proof: Constructing Individual Arguments
Inductive Reasoning and Evidence
Reasoning by Classification
Reasoning by Generalization
Reasoning by Signs
Reasoning by Analogy
Reasoning by Causation
Reasoning by Narrative Probability
Deductive Reasoning and Validity
Categorical Deduction

Appendices

Appendix A: Searching Your Speech
Appendix B: Explaining Processes
Appendix C: Speeches for Special Occasions
Appendix D: Sample Speeches for Analysis and Discussion

Index